

The Center for Collaborative Education offers the following valuable publications in our series: The Essential Guide to Pilot Schools

Overview

This guide offers an introduction to the Pilot/Horace Mann Schools, a group of 20 autonomous Boston Public Schools that are getting strong results. The result of an innovative teacher union contract, the Pilot Schools are the only network of public schools in the nation that we have autonomy over budget, staffing, governance, schedule, and curriculum and assessment.

Through the text and web-based Overview guide, readers will learn:

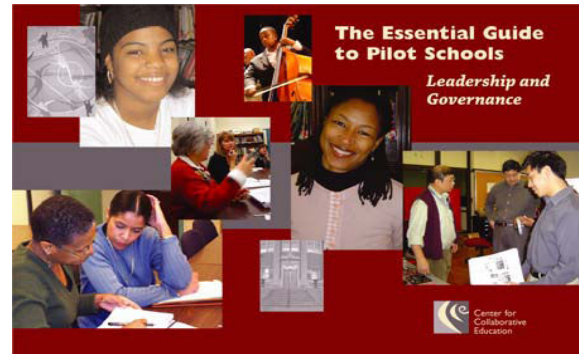

- The essentials of Pilot Schools, including autonomy, accountability, small size, and a commitment to equity;
- Data that shows the results of the Pilot model;
- How Pilot Schools fit into the school reform context;
- The power of the Pilot Schools Network; and
- Steps for getting Pilot Schools started in other districts and schools

Leadership and Governance

In the Leadership and Governance guide, readers will learn the essentials of building a strong framework in Pilot Schools, including transforming leadership roles, setting a school mission and vision, and creating a professional collaborative culture.

The guide includes narrative and tools on many facets of leadership and governance including:

- The role of governing boards and election-to-work agreements in Pilot Schools;
- Shared decision-making structures;
- The unique role and challenges of Pilot School principals; and
- Case studies examining how Pilot Schools approach professional collaboration.
